COMMENTARY

In the two trading sessions following Japan's devastating 11 March earthquake and tsunami, Japanese shares lost more than 16% of their market value. Orbis concluded that this reaction far exceeded the long-term impact on intrinsic value and added to many of the Orbis Global Equity Fund's Japanese holdings while holding others in the face of panic selling. In Orbis' view, many of these companies were undervalued before the earthquake and the sudden sell-off made them even more attractive. Although the earthquake's long-term impact on the Japanese stock market is uncertain, Orbis believes the Bank of Japan's aggressive monetary response is potentially positive for share prices.

- A Total Expense Ratio (TER) is a measure of a portfolio's assets that are relinquished as operating expenses. The total operating expenses are expressed as a percentage of the average value of the portfolio, calculated for the year to the end of December 2010. Included in the TER is the proportion of costs that are incurred by the performance component, fee at benchmark, trading costs (including brokerage VAT, STR, STRATE and insider trading levy) and other expenses. These are disclosed separately as percentages of the net asset value. A higher TER ratio does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER cannot be regarded as an indication of future TERs. The information provided is applicable to class A units.
- Including VAT

The investment management fee rate for the three months ending 31 March 2011 was 2.31% (annualised)

Collective Investment Schemes in Securities (unit trusts) are generally medium- to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future. Unit trusts are traded at ruling prices and Collective Investment Schemes in Securities (unit trusts) are generally medium- to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future. Unit trusts are traded at ruling prices and can engage in borrowing and scrip lending. A schedule of fees and charges and maximum commissions is available on request from the company/scheme. Commission and incentives may be paid and if so, would be included in the overall costs. Unit trust prices are calculated on a net asset value basis, which is the total market value of all assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. Declarations of income accruals are made annually. Purchase and redemption requests must be received by the manager by 14:00 each business day and fund valuations take place at approximately 16:00 each business day. Forward pricing is therefore used. Performance figures are from Allan Gray Limited (GIPS compliant) and are for lump sum investments with income distributions reinvested. A feeder fund is a unit trust fund that, apart from assets in liquid form, consists solely of units in a single portfolio of a collective investment scheme. Permissible deductions may include management fees, brokerage, STT, auditor's fees, bank charges and truster fees. Fluctuations and movements in exchange rates may also cause the value of underlying international investments to go up or down. The Fund may be closed to new investments at any time in order to be managed in accordance with its mandate. Total Expense Ratio (TER): When investing, costs are only a part of an investment decision. The investment of the investment and whether it represents hould be evaluated as part of the financial planning procees.
