Commentary

2007 was a very disappointing year for the Fund. While the absolute performance of 12.0% was satisfactory, the Fund significantly underperformed the benchmark JSE Index which returned 19.2% for the year. 2008 may well be a challenging year for the benchmark index. Valuations for most companies are no longer at a discount to international peers and with corporate profits at record levels, many companies may struggle to grow earnings in the face of a consumer spending slowdown and lower base metal prices. The rand remains exposed to the whims of foreign investors who are funding the large current account deficit equal to 8% of gross domestic product. Notwithstanding these potential headwinds, we expect the Fund's portfolio of high quality growth companies with international exposure, rand-hedged gold producers, and select domestic and financial stocks to meaningfully outperform the benchmark over our 3 to 5 year investment time horizon.
