

Our Thinking

After a 34% peak-to-trough plunge from mid-February to late March, global equity markets have rebounded sharply over the past two months. This leaves the MSCI World Index down less than 10% since the start of the year, which is a remarkably sanguine outcome amid a pandemic and shutdown of the global economy. As countries begin to reopen, markets will likely remain volatile as investors try to decide which letter of the alphabet the shape of the recovery will resemble.

While these gyrations can appear chaotic, they are simply part of how investors digest new information to form views. Those views are reflected in market prices, so prices also convey information. At every moment in the trading day, we know exactly how much investors are willing to pay for each security in our portfolios. The price tells us everything we need to know about how optimistic or pessimistic the market is about a company's future prospects.

But both optimism and pessimism can be excessive. In our October 2018 commentary, we mentioned Mr Market, Benjamin Graham's famous analogy of an erratic business partner. Each morning, Mr Market will offer to buy your stake of the business, and the price he offers will go up or down depending on his mood. Often his offer will be fair, but sometimes it will be much higher than your assessment of the true value of the business, and sometimes it will be much lower. You can trade with him when it suits you, but you are always free to ignore him.

The same is true with today's stock market. The prices on offer are just one piece of information for us to use or ignore. Sometimes we share the market's optimism, sometimes we don't. But we are neither blindly contrary nor blind followers of Mr Market. We follow our research and make up our own minds.

NetEase is a good example of a case where we agree with the market's optimism. Its shares have risen 25% year-to-date and the stock is among the top performers in several of the Orbis Funds over that period. Mr Market has good reasons for optimism. NetEase is a resilient business with no long-term debt and a cash pile equivalent to nearly 20% of its market value. Its key businesses—games, education, and music—are all delivered online and thus tailor made for whatever the post-pandemic future holds. Despite its strong performance, NetEase remains available at an undemanding valuation. Adjusting for its cash, the company trades at 18 times the earnings of its core games business.

On the other hand, there are many companies where we share the market's pessimism, including most brick-and-mortar retailers, hyperextended US shale producers, and some of the weaker banks in Europe. Though we have looked for potential bargains, we have come up empty-handed and in full agreement with Mr Market.

But the more interesting cases are those where we disagree with the market. At the moment, this includes consumer staples businesses like Kimberly-Clark and Nestlé. These have done remarkably well in the scramble to load up on household necessities, and not owning them has hurt our relative performance. Still, we struggle to envision a structural uptick in long-term demand for toilet paper and baby food. Perhaps there is some comfort to be found in businesses that have stood the test of time—in this case 148 and 154 years, respectively. But the price one pays for that reassurance is unusually high. As a group, consumer staples shares trade at about 20 times earnings despite lacklustre growth prospects. We'd rather own NetEase.

Our favourite situations, however, are where we disagree with the market's pessimism on a stock. Excessive pessimism can sometimes create the opportunity to buy high quality businesses that aren't normally available at bargain prices. Comcast is one such example. It's a company that we know well, having first owned it in the Orbis Global Equity Strategy some 16 years ago. In February and March, Mr Market knocked $60 billion off Comcast's value in the space of weeks, in large part due to fears about the closure of its Universal Studios theme parks. While this was hardly welcome news, the parks account for only $2.5 billion of annual operating income, which is about a tenth of the profit from Comcast's utility-like cable and broadband services. Mr Market offered us Comcast shares at just 12 times earnings—an offer we were happy to accept.

It's during times like these that our investment research capability earns its keep. We have more than 40 analysts globally conducting fundamental research on companies. Going into 2020, Orbis Global Equity held just over 60 companies, but our analysts were actively covering at least another hundred. We like to think of this as our "wine cellar", and we made several trips to the cellar in recent months, establishing new positions in Comcast, Alibaba, and Disney, among others.

As humans, we are hopeful that the world will soon return to normal. As investors, we have no particular insight about the timing or the new definition of "normal". But as partial owners of the businesses held in the Orbis Funds, we are enthusiastic about the opportunities that Mr Market has offered us.

This report does not constitute a recommendation to buy, sell or hold any interests, shares or other securities in the companies mentioned in it nor does it constitute financial advice.

Fund Objective and Benchmark

The Fund is designed for investors who have made the “asset allocation” decision to invest a predetermined amount in global equities. It seeks higher returns than the average of the world’s equity markets, without greater risk of loss. A benchmark is used by the Fund for two purposes: performance comparison (the “Fund Benchmark”) and performance fee calculation (the “Performance Fee Benchmark”). The Fund Benchmark is the FTSE World Index, including income, before the deduction of withholding taxes (“FTSE World Index”). The Performance Fee Benchmark of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) is the MSCI World Index, including income and after deduction of withholding taxes.

How We Aim to Achieve the Fund’s Objective/Adherence to Objective

The Fund is actively managed and seeks to remain virtually fully invested in and exposed to global stockmarkets. It invests in equities considered to offer superior fundamental value. These equities are selected using extensive proprietary investment research. Orbis devotes a substantial proportion of its business efforts to detailed “bottom up” investment research conducted with a long-term perspective, believing that such research makes superior long-term performance attainable. The lower the price of a share as compared to its assessed intrinsic value, the more attractive Orbis considers the equity’s fundamental value. The Investment Manager believes that over the long term, equity investing based on this approach offers superior returns and reduces the risk of loss. The Fund may, to the extent permitted by its investment restrictions, also periodically hold cash and cash equivalents when the Investment Manager believes this to be consistent with the Fund’s investment objective.

Exchange rate fluctuations significantly influence global investment returns. For this reason, part of Orbis’ research effort is devoted to forecasting currency trends. Taking into account these expected trends, Orbis actively reviews the Fund’s currency exposure. In doing so, Orbis places particular focus on managing the Fund’s exposure to those currencies considered less likely to hold their long-term value. The Fund’s currency deployment therefore frequently differs significantly from the geographic deployment of its selected equities.

The Fund does not seek to mirror the Fund Benchmark but may instead deviate meaningfully from it in pursuit of superior long-term capital appreciation.

The net returns of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) from its inception on 14 May 2020, stitched with the net returns of the Investor Share Class from the Fund’s inception to 14 May 2020, have outperformed the stitched Performance Fee Benchmarks of the respective classes. The Fund will experience periods of underperformance in pursuit of its objective of creating long-term wealth for investors.

Management Fee

As is described in more detail in the Fund’s Prospectus, the Fund’s share classes bear different management fees. The fees are designed to align the Investment Manager’s interests with those of investors in the Fund.

For an initial period of time, the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) is charging the fee of the Investor Share Class, reduced by 0.3% per annum, with reference to the FTSE World Index. Numerous investors have switched to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) from the Investor Share Class. This temporary measure will ensure that the fees paid by investors account for underperformance experienced by the Investor Share Class before the inception date of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). The fee of the Investor Share Class that is currently being charged to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) is calculated as follows:

The fee rate is calculated weekly by comparing the Class’ performance over three years against the FTSE World Index. For each percentage point of three year performance above or below that benchmark’s performance, 0.04 percentage points are added to or subtracted from 1.5%, subject to the following limits:

- Maximum fee: 2.5% per annum
- Minimum fee: 0.5% per annum

This fee is then reduced by 0.3% per annum. This 0.3% per annum reduction is provided because investors in the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) are subject to an additional administrative fee, as they separately agree with Allan Gray Proprietary Limited (or one of its affiliates) from time to time.

The Shared Investor RRF Class (A) will continue to charge the fee of the Investor Share Class, reduced by 0.3% per annum, with reference to the FTSE World Index until the earlier of the first dealing day (a) on or after 14 May 2023, or (b) on which the average management fee charged by the Investor Share Class equals or exceeds 1.5% per annum of the Investor Share Class’ net assets for the period ending on that dealing day and beginning on the later of (i) 12 months prior to that dealing day, or (ii) 14 May 2020. After this point, the Class’ management fee will instead be charged as follows:

- Base Fee: Calculated and accrued weekly at a rate of 0.8% per annum of the Class’ net asset value. Investors separately pay an administrative fee directly to Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or one of its affiliates. The Investment Manager or one of its affiliates is entitled to receive a separate fee from Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or one of its affiliates in connection with this administrative fee, related to services the Investment Manager and its affiliates provide to Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or its affiliates.
- Refundable Performance Fee: When the performance of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) (after deducting the Base Fee and an additional 0.3% per annum, which is deemed to be representative of the aforementioned administrative fee) beats the Performance Fee Benchmark over the period from one dealing day to the next, 25% of the value of the outperformance is paid into a reserve and reinvested into the Fund. If the value of the reserve is positive on any dealing day, the Investment Manager is entitled to a performance fee in an amount capped at the lesser of an annualised rate of (a) one-third of the reserve’s net asset value and (b) 2.5% of the net asset value of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). Fees paid from the reserve to the Investment Manager are not available to be refunded as described below.

When the performance of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) (after deducting the Base Fee and the aforementioned additional 0.3% per annum) trails the Performance Fee Benchmark over the period from one dealing day to the next, 25% of the value of the underperformance is refunded from the reserve to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). If at any time sufficient value does not exist in the reserve to provide the refund, a reserve recovery mark is set, and subsequent underperformance is tracked. Such relative losses must be recovered before any outperformance results in any payment to the reserve.

Please review the Fund’s prospectus for additional detail and for a description of the management fee borne by the Fund’s other share classes.

Fees, Expenses and Total Expense Ratio (TER)

In addition to the fees payable to its Investment Manager, the Fund bears operating costs, including the costs of maintaining its stock exchange listing, Bermuda government fees, legal and auditing fees, reporting expenses, the cost of preparing its Prospectus and communication costs. Finally, the Fund incurs costs when buying or selling underlying investments. Operating costs (excluding the Investment Manager's fee, the cost of buying and selling assets, interest and brokerage charges and certain taxes) attributable to the Fund's Shared Investor RRF Class (A) are currently capped at 0.15% per annum of the net asset value of that class.

Where an investor subscribes or redeems an amount representing 5% or more of the net asset value of the Fund, the Investment Manager may cause the Fund to levy a fee of 0.40% of the net asset value of the Fund's shares being acquired or redeemed.

The annual management fees charged are included in the TER. The TER is a measure of the actual expenses incurred by the Class over a 12 month period, excluding trading costs. Since Fund and Class returns are quoted after deduction of these expenses, the TER should not be deducted from the published returns. Expenses may vary, so the current TER is not a reliable indicator of future TERs.

Risk/Reward Profile

- The Fund is designed for investors who have made the "asset allocation" decision to invest a predetermined amount in global equities.

Notes to Help You Understand This Report

Certain capitalised terms are defined in the Glossary section of the Orbis Funds’ respective Prospectuses, copies of which are available upon request from Allan Gray Unit Trust Management (RF) Proprietary Limited, a Member of the Association for Savings & Investments SA. The country and currency classification for equity securities follows that of third party benchmark providers for comparability purposes. Based on a number of factors including the location of the underlying business, Orbis may consider a security’s classification to be different and manage the Funds’ exposures accordingly. Totals presented in this Report may not sum due to rounding.

Risk measures are ex-post and calculated on a monthly return series. Months to recovery measures the number of months from the preceding peak in performance to recovery of that level of performance.

12 month portfolio turnover for the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds is calculated as the lesser of total security purchases or sales in the Fund over the period, divided by the average net asset value (NAV) of the Fund. Short-term fixed income instruments are not included.

12 month name turnover for the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds is calculated as the number of positions held by the Fund at the start of the period but no longer held at the end of the period, divided by the total number of positions held by the Fund at the start of the period. Short-term fixed income instruments are not included.

Active share is a measure of the extent to which the holdings of the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds differ from their respective benchmark’s holdings. It is calculated by summing the absolute value of the differences of the weight of each individual security in the specific Orbis Fund, versus the weight of each holding in the respective benchmark index, and dividing by two. For the Multi-Asset Class Funds, three calculations of active share are disclosed. The Portfolio active share incorporates the equity, fixed income, commodity-linked and other securities (as applicable) held by the Orbis Fund and compares those to the holdings of the composite benchmark. The Equity and Fixed Income active shares are calculated as if the equity and fixed income portions of the Orbis Funds are independent funds; each of those two sets of holdings is separately compared to the fully-weighted holdings in the appropriate component of the composite benchmark. Although the Multi-Asset Class Funds hedge stock and bond market exposure, the active share calculations are “gross” and not adjusted to reflect the hedging in place at any point in time.

The total expense ratio has been calculated using the expenses, excluding trading costs, and average net assets for the 12 month period ending 31 May 2020.
