

Orbis Emerging Markets Equity

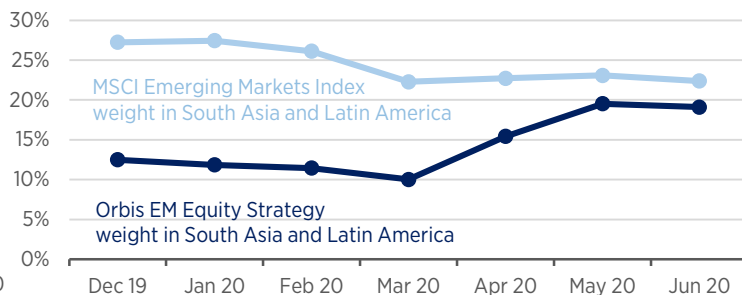

Though we would always caution against reading too much into short-term returns, we are encouraged that the Orbis Emerging Markets Equity Strategy's stronger rebound from the lows of late March means it has protected client capital better than its benchmark during the calendar year to date. The Strategy's near 25% return¹ in the past three months somewhat moderates our previously high optimism about its long-term absolute return potential. But we also draw enthusiasm from how the wide divergence in returns within the emerging markets (EM) universe has enabled us to refresh the portfolio in recent months.

As shown in the left chart below, the North Asian markets of China, Taiwan and Korea are now back to the levels at which they started the year, while those in Latin America and South Asia are still down significantly, having at one point lost as much as half of their value.

South Asia and Latin America have underperformed other EMs...

...and we have increased our equity exposure to South Asia and Latin America

Source: Orbis, MSCI. North Asia includes China, Taiwan and South Korea. South Asia includes Indonesia, India, Malaysia, Philippines and Thailand. Latin America includes Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico and Peru. Left: Total performance indexed to 100 at 31 Dec 19. EM and Latin America EM returns are MSCI indices. Whether the prevailing mood among market participants is one of gloom or euphoria, our focus remains the same: to assess whether share prices appropriately reflect the intrinsic value of individual companies. When periods of extreme fear cause prices to fall by much more than their intrinsic value, the risk that we worry most about—that of permanent capital loss—can be reduced. This can provide opportunity for long-term investors who are willing to take a different position from the market consensus.

The COVID-19 pandemic has affected several countries in South Asia and Latin America even more adversely than other EMs, causing the intrinsic value of many companies operating in these regions to fall substantially. But we do not believe this is true across the board. By marking down the share prices of a handful of high-quality companies to a similar extent as their local stockmarkets, the volatile and declining markets of the first half of 2020 presented us with some promising investment opportunities.

During that period we added to Orbis EM Equity's existing positions in Astra International, a dominant Indonesian automotive franchise, and Ayala, a diversified conglomerate in the Philippines, at prices we viewed as particularly attractive. We also repurchased shares in Housing Development Finance Corporation, a leading Indian provider of financial services, and initiated new positions in two stocks that our analysts had previously researched and we have long wanted to own at the right price: Ambev, Brazil's largest brewer, and Fomento Económico Mexicano (FEMSA), a Mexican consumer business conglomerate.

As a result of these last two purchases, the Strategy's exposure to shares in Latin America stood at 6% at 30 June, up from zero at the start of the year. Common threads linking Ambev and FEMSA include their strong consumer franchises and cash flow generation, as well as their conservative balance sheets. As described in last quarter's commentary, these highly-desirable characteristics not only make companies resilient in testing economic conditions, but also give them the ability to use such periods to further strengthen their competitive position.

Ambev

With a local market share of more than 60%, Ambev dominates the Brazilian beer market, and holds similar positions in other, smaller countries in Latin America. Its majority owner, Anheuser-Busch InBev (AB InBev), is now the largest global brewer after two decades of industry consolidation. Longstanding home-grown brands, such as Brahma and Skol, account for the vast majority of Ambev's sales, and the company can also access AB InBev's international brands, including Budweiser, Corona and Stella Artois, in the premium segment.

Ambev has many of the key characteristics we look for in a business, most notably a sustainable competitive advantage that enables it to earn higher operating profit margins and returns on capital than its peers. That advantage comes from the combination of strong brands, dominant scale and a well-entrenched distribution network. This final point is particularly important in a country such as Brazil, where the majority of beer sales occur across a million points of sales, often in mom-and-pop stores and informal bars that are inaccessible even to small trucks. By developing by far the most efficient returnable glass bottle infrastructure in Brazil, Ambev can not only supply the most outlets but also lower its production costs per bottle at the same time. It also benefits from being part of the world's largest beer group with strong bargaining power for raw materials such as aluminium and barley. The global AB InBev group was created through a series of mergers orchestrated by the founders of 3G Capital, a Brazilian private equity firm known for its relentless efforts to lower costs. While an aggressive focus on efficiency and short-term profits may not be in the best interests of long-term shareholders, two things give us comfort. One, the founders of 3G continue to personally own around 20% of AB InBev, aligning their interests with those of other long-term shareholders, and two, those founders have recently acknowledged the risks of 3G's approach and expressed willingness to change.

We initiated the position in Ambev when its shares traded at around 15 times last year's earnings—a meaningful discount to global peers such as Heineken, Carlsberg, Budweiser APAC and Tsingtao, which traded at between 20 to 30 times. In our view, the market became too pessimistic about the short-term headwinds facing Ambev, both the impact of the pandemic on bar traffic and the potential for consumers to trade down from higher-margin products amid the resulting economic weakness. While much uncertainty remains, we expect these challenges to be transient and believe Ambev's intrinsic value is essentially undiminished.

FEMSA

Founded in 1890, FEMSA is jointly controlled by five families led by the Garza Lagüera family, who have been good stewards of capital for over a century. The company began with a local beer operation that grew into the second largest player in Mexico before being sold to Heineken in exchange for an equity stake. That transaction made FEMSA the second largest shareholder in Heineken after the founding family. It has gradually diversified into the retail sector through a chain of convenience stores operating under the OXXO brand in Mexico and, more recently, pharmacy chains. It also owns a controlling stake in the largest bottler of Coca-Cola in the world, largely focused on Latin America. Today, around 60% of its total value comes from its retail business, a further 25% from its stake in Heineken, and the remainder from the Coca-Cola bottling operation that generates substantial cash.

We are most excited about the growth prospects for FEMSA's retail business. Through our prior experience of investing in 7-Eleven licensees in Asia (CP All in Thailand, President Chain Stores in Taiwan, and Dairy Farm in Hong Kong, Singapore and Southern China), we appreciate the attractive economics of these businesses that serve time-sensitive, rather than price-sensitive, consumers. Furthermore, once a chain of stores has established a scale advantage within a locality, it can use its distribution efficiency and negotiating power in procurement to lock out its competition—and to extend those advantages by rolling out a nationwide network over time. Unlike other forms of retail, convenience stores also stand to benefit from the needs of an increasingly urban lifestyle with a low risk of technological disruption. Indeed, FEMSA is increasingly using its well-developed store network to provide a variety of interlinked digital services—such as cash cards, bill payments, digital transactions, and e-commerce pick-ups—more efficiently than their traditional alternatives.

We established the position in FEMSA at a price slightly above 20 times its 2019 earnings. At first glance, that valuation does not appear especially depressed, but we considered it reasonable given the company's quality and growth potential. OXXO may be Mexico's largest convenience store chain, but its market share is small, and the industry remains fragmented with many less efficient mom-and-pop stores. We believe the company can sustain its growth by taking market share, growing same-store sales, and reinvesting its attractive returns on capital into profitable new stores. In time, we also expect it to generate high-margin revenues from recent investments to prepare for its future role as a facilitator in the digital economy. We are mindful that FEMSA cannot escape potential risks relating to the political and business climate in Mexico. This may affect its shares in the short-to-medium term but we continue to find them attractive over our long-term investment horizon.

By retaining a focus on the intrinsic value of individual companies, patient long-term investors can use disorderly markets to improve their portfolios. With lower-conviction ideas such as Swire Pacific, Sohu.com and Gedeon Richter, as well as others in the auto sector, acting as sources of capital for the purchases in Latin America and South Asia, we believe the first half of 2020 is a good example of that continuous process in action.

Orbis SICAV Emerging Markets Equity Fund

Shared Investor Refundable Reserve Fee Share Class (A) ("Shared Investor RRF Class (A)")

The Fund seeks higher returns than the average of the equity markets of the world's emerging market countries, without greater risk of loss. The performance fee benchmark ("Benchmark") of the Class is the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, including income, net of withholding taxes ("MSCI Emerging Markets Index"). Currency exposure is managed relative to that of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

Fund Objective and Benchmark

The Fund seeks higher returns than the average of the equity stock markets of the world's emerging market countries, without greater risk of loss. The MSCI Emerging Markets Index, including income, net of withholding taxes, is the Fund's benchmark (the “MSCI Emerging Markets Index”).

How We Aim to Achieve the Fund's Objective/Adherence to Objective

The Fund is actively managed and is designed to be exposed to all of the risks and rewards of selected Emerging Market equities. The Fund expects to be not less than 90% invested in Emerging Market equity and equity-linked investments. The Fund identifies Emerging Market equity and equity-linked investments as those investments that are issued by a corporate body or other entity domiciled or primarily located in a country represented in the MSCI Emerging Markets Index or the MSCI Frontier Markets Index (together, “Emerging Markets”), traded or listed on an exchange in an Emerging Market or issued by a corporate body or other entity whose business is significantly linked to Emerging Markets. These equities are selected using extensive proprietary investment research. Orbis devotes a substantial proportion of its business efforts to detailed “bottom up” investment research conducted with a long-term perspective, believing that such research makes superior long-term performance attainable. The lower the price of a share as compared to its assessed intrinsic value, the more attractive Orbis considers the equity's fundamental value. The Investment Manager believes that over the long term, equity investing based on this approach offers superior returns and reduces the risk of loss. The Fund may, to the extent permitted by its investment restrictions, also periodically hold cash and cash equivalents when the Investment Manager considers this to be consistent with the Fund's investment objective.

Exchange rate fluctuations significantly influence global investment returns. For this reason, part of Orbis' research effort is devoted to forecasting currency trends. Taking into account these expected trends, the Investment Manager actively reviews the Fund's currency exposure, focusing, in particular, on managing the Fund's exposure to those currencies considered less likely to hold their long-term value.

The Fund does not seek to mirror the MSCI Emerging Markets Index and may deviate meaningfully from it in pursuit of superior long-term capital appreciation.

The net returns of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) from its inception on 14 May 2020, stitched with the net returns of the Investor Share Class from the Fund's inception to 14 May 2020, have outperformed the stitched Performance Fee Benchmarks of the respective classes. The Fund will experience periods of underperformance in pursuit of its objective of creating long-term wealth for investors.

Risk/Reward Profile

- The Fund is aimed at investors who are seeking a portfolio the objective of which is to be invested in, and exposed to, Emerging Market securities.
- Investments in the Fund may suffer capital loss.
- Investors should understand that the Investment Manager generally assesses an equity investment's attractiveness using a three-to-five year time horizon.

Management Fee

As is described in more detail in the Fund's Prospectus, the Fund's various share classes bear different management fees. The fees are designed to align the Manager's and Investment Manager's interests with those of investors in the Fund.

For an initial period of time, the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) is charging the fee of the Investor Share Class, reduced by 0.3% per annum. Numerous investors have switched to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) from the Investor Share Class. This temporary measure will ensure that the fees paid by investors account for underperformance experienced by the Investor Share Class before the inception date of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). The fee of the Investor Share Class that is currently being charged to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) is calculated as follows:

The fee rate is calculated weekly by comparing the Class' performance over three years against the MSCI Emerging Markets Index. For each percentage point of three year performance above or below that performance, 0.04 percentage points are added to or deducted from 1.5%, subject to the following limits:

- Maximum fee: 2.5% per annum
- Minimum fee: 0.5% per annum

This fee is then reduced by 0.3% per annum. This 0.3% per annum reduction is provided because investors in the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) are subject to an additional administrative fee, as they separately agree with Allan Gray Proprietary Limited (or one of its affiliates) from time to time.

The Shared Investor RRF Class (A) will continue to charge the fee of the Investor Share Class, reduced by 0.3% per annum, until the earlier of the first dealing day (a) on or after 14 May 2023, or (b) on which the average management fee charged by the Investor Share Class equals or exceeds 1.5% per annum of the Investor Share Class' net assets for the period ending on that dealing day and beginning on the later of (i) 12 months prior to that dealing day, or (ii) 14 May 2020. After this point, the Class' management fee will instead be charged as follows:

- Base Fee: Calculated and accrued weekly at a rate of 0.8% per annum of the Class' net asset value. Investors separately pay an administrative fee directly to Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or one of its affiliates. The Investment Manager or one of its affiliates is entitled to receive a separate fee from Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or one of its affiliates in connection with this administrative fee, related to services the Investment Manager and its affiliates provide to Allan Gray Proprietary Limited or its affiliates.
- Refundable Performance Fee: When the performance of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) (after deducting the Base Fee and an additional 0.3% per annum, which is deemed to be representative of the aforementioned administrative fee) beats the Performance Fee Benchmark over the period from one dealing day to the next, 25% of the value of the outperformance is paid into a reserve and reinvested into the Fund. If the value of the reserve is positive on any dealing day, the Investment Manager is entitled to a performance fee in an amount capped at the lesser of an annualised rate of (a) one-third of the reserve's net asset value and (b) 2.5% of the net asset value of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). Fees paid from the reserve to the Investment Manager are not available to be refunded as described below.

When the performance of the Shared Investor RRF Class (A) (after deducting the Base Fee and the aforementioned additional 0.3% per annum) trails the Performance Fee Benchmark over the period from one dealing day to the next, 25% of the value of the underperformance is refunded from the reserve to the Shared Investor RRF Class (A). If at any time sufficient value does not exist in the reserve to provide the refund, a reserve recovery mark is set, and subsequent underperformance is tracked. Such relative losses must be recovered before any outperformance results in any payment to the reserve.

Please review the Fund's prospectus for additional detail and for a description of the management fee borne by the Fund's other share classes.

Fees, Expenses and Total Expense Ratio (TER)

The relevant class within the Fund bears all expenses payable by such class, which shall include but not be limited to fees payable to its Manager, Investment Manager and additional service providers, fees and expenses involved in registering and maintaining governmental registrations, taxes, duties and all other operating expenses, including the cost of buying and selling assets.

Where an investor subscribes or redeems an amount representing 5% or more of the net asset value of the Fund, the Manager may cause the Fund to levy a fee of 0.75% of the net asset value of the Fund shares being acquired or redeemed.

The annual management fees charged are included in the TER. The TER is a measure of the actual expenses incurred by the class over a 12 month period, excluding trading costs. Since Fund and Class returns are quoted after deduction of these expenses, the TER should not be deducted from the published returns. Expenses may vary, so the current TER is not a reliable indicator of future TERs.

Neither Morningstar nor its content providers are responsible for any damages or losses arising from any use of this information. The latest average fund indices provided by Morningstar are for 18 June 2020. To allow comparison of returns to a common date we have extended the average equity and multi-asset class fund indices to reflect the subsequent movement of the applicable benchmark indices. Average fund returns are not shown for periods of a month or less as high price volatility and late fund reporting regularly cause them to be significantly restated by Morningstar.

Notes to Help You Understand This Report

Certain capitalised terms are defined in the Glossary section of the Orbis Funds' respective Prospectuses, copies of which are available upon request from Allan Gray Unit Trust Management (RF) Proprietary Limited, a Member of the Association for Savings & Investments SA. The country, currency and Emerging Market classification for securities follows that of third-party providers for comparability purposes. Emerging Markets includes Frontier Markets. Based on a number of factors including the location of the underlying business, Orbis may consider a security's classification to be different and manage the Funds' exposures accordingly. Totals presented in this Report may not sum due to rounding.

Risk measures are ex-post and calculated on a monthly return series. Months to recovery measures the number of months from the preceding peak in performance to recovery of that level of performance.

12 month portfolio turnover for the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds is calculated as the lesser of total security purchases or sales in the Fund over the period, divided by the average net asset value (NAV) of the Fund. Short-term fixed income instruments are not included.

12 month name turnover for the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds is calculated as the number of positions held by the Fund at the start of the period but no longer held at the end of the period, divided by the total number of positions held by the Fund at the start of the period. Short-term fixed income instruments are not included.

Active share is a measure of the extent to which the holdings of the Orbis Equity and Multi-Asset Class Funds differ from their respective benchmark's holdings. It is calculated by summing the absolute value of the differences of the weight of each individual security in the specific Orbis Fund, versus the weight of each holding in the respective benchmark index, and dividing by two. For the Multi-Asset Class Funds, three calculations of active share are disclosed. The Portfolio active share incorporates the equity, fixed income, commodity-linked and other securities (as applicable) held by the Orbis Fund and compares those to the holdings of the composite benchmark. The Equity and Fixed Income active shares are calculated as if the equity and fixed income portions of the Orbis Funds are independent funds; each of those two sets of holdings is separately compared to the fully-weighted holdings in the appropriate component of the composite benchmark. Although the Multi-Asset Class Funds hedge stock and bond market exposure, the active share calculations are "gross" and not adjusted to reflect the hedging in place at any point in time.

The total expense ratio has been calculated using the expenses, excluding trading costs, for the 12 month period ending 30 June 2020.
